Business Intelligence

In today's demanding competitive and regulatory environments, it is imperative that organizations increase agility while performing optimally and satisfying strict regulatory obligations. Most aggressive entities have invested heavily in business intelligence applications, complex technical infrastructures and process improvements only to find that they are overloaded with data and reports.

Avistas provides expertise in identifying, assimilating and aligning relevant business and technical data into actionable information delivered to the appropriate levels throughout the organization.

We specialize in assisting our clients with developing significant improvements in the following areas:

- ▶ Operational Visibility – “Line-of-SightSM”
- ▶ Financial and Performance Data
- ▶ Trends and Triggers
- ▶ Presentation and Delivery of Business Intelligence

Operational Visibility – “Line-of-SightSM”

Our clients achieve maximum results when they obtain full Operational Visibility into their departments, divisions, enterprise, partners, affiliates, customers as well as competitive threats. Avistas works with our clients to review and improve visibility and management of relevant performance and asset utilization criteria coupled with current budget or cash management positions, then linking these to relevant reporting tools such as scorecards, dashboards, threshold alarms and alerts accessible via authorized intranet, internet and mobile services. Only when the linkages of cause-and-effect are bridged from end-to-end of a process, value chain or supply chain can you obtain true performance “Line-of-SightSM” leading to actionable business intelligence.

Financial and Performance Data

Avistas professional resources augment our clients' staff to access all relevant financial and performance data for analytics and reporting. We distill and synthesize data into actionable business intelligence by identifying new trends and correlations to customer behavior, market conditions, manufacturing procedures, quality control and competitive threats while providing fully compliant audit trails.

Trends and Triggers

Our professional resources are experts at identifying and linking relevant business and technical data to events that shape trends and indicate shifts in performance patterns. This information is then used to isolate “trigger events” and establish or revise key performance indicators. It is also used to distinguish between isolated occurrences and repeatable benchmarks.

Presentation and Delivery of Business Intelligence

From mobile devices to desktops, electronic displays, presentations and printed collateral, Avistas professional resources support our clients with efficient methods to communicate among executives, managers, front-line employees, business partners, investors and regulatory officers all relevant performance criteria and exception reporting related to specific roles, rights and responsibilities assigned.

"Mining" the value of business intelligence is not a difficult process, but requires care and attention to be successful. Avistas can help assure that you gain maximum value from your business data.
